Cancel the Countdown to stop Trident II missile

by David Schlenker
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

On Jan. 15 to 17, thousands of people from at least 24 states will flock to Cape Canaveral Air Station to protest and try to delay, if not cancel, the long-planned test launch of the Trident II D-5 nuclear missile.

The "Cancel the Countdown" project, organized by National Mobilization for Survival, the Florida Coalition for Peace and Justice, and the First Strike Prevention Project, began with a march from the Trident submarine base in Kingsbay, Ga., on Dec. 28.

On Jan. 15, activists will attempt to enter and occupy the Security Zone of the Air Station during the scheduled launching time. Federal regulations prohibit missile tests while there are people in this zone. The protesters hope that this will delay the test as long as possible.

At noon on Jan. 17., protesters will gather in Port Canaveral and march three miles to the Cape, hoping to cover all the gates at facility. Here, the demonstrators plan to engage in acts of nonviolent civil disobedience.

The protesters refer to this as a "Nuremberg Action." The term originates from the Nuremberg Principles signed after World War II, which call for citizens to refuse to participate in or allow "crimes against humanity."

The demonstrators, who have undergone nonviolent training, will be joined by Detroit Bishop Thomas Gumbleton, co-author of the Bishops' Pastoral Letter on nuclear weapons. Other protesters include pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Spock, nuclear physicist Dr. Michio Kaku, author and poet Grace Paley, and blues singer Odetta.

"On Jan. 17...many of us will exercise our right under international law to enter the installation in an act of nonviolent disobedience," said a National Motivation for Survival flier. "As long as flight testing continues at Cape Canaveral...the arms race will continue to escalate unabated."

The upcoming demonstration is the first national peace demonstration ever to be held in the South. Delegates from California and the Midwest are expected, and a "Peace Train," sponsored by National Motivation for Survival, will arrive from Boston.

Several protesters have already been arrested since Jan. 10 and more arrests are expected before Jan. 17. Organizers of the protest maintain, however, that it is an act of nonviolent civil disobedience.

Campus Run positive step

by Timothy A. Pirlo
SPECIAL TO THE FUTURE

The UCF Army ROTC Department held its first Run Over The Campus on Dec. 13, 1986 at 8 a.m.

The race was held to promote physical fitness in the college community, to gain exposure for the UCF Army ROTC program and to recruit future students. Seminole and Valencia Community Colleges and UCF participated in the 8K race, which began near the UCF swimming pool and circled through the campus.

The weather was crisp and cool, but that did not deter the runners' spirits. Dr. Donald B. Ardell, director of UCF's Campus Wellness Center, finished first in his age group and third in the overall competition. Eric Goldsmith finished first overall in the race with a time of 25:28. Refreshments were donated by Orange Ring, Crystal Water and Burger King. Participants received T-shirts and awards were given to the finishers in several men's and women's age groups.

The UCF Army ROTC Department is planning another race in the spring. Those interested in participating, or donating time or refreshments for the event should contact UCF Army ROTC at 275-2065.

Pro Tempore resigns others vie for slot

by V. E. Sorzano
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Pro Tempore Steve Phillips resigned from the senate Thursday, citing job conflicts. According to Phillips, he will be working too many hours off-campus to continue his duties as pro tempore.

The pro tempore acts as senate chairman if the vice president cannot serve. He is also an active member of all five student government committees. The position involves 15 hours of work each week and pays $1,600 a year.

"There comes a time for people to move on to other things," Phillips told the senate. "It's time for the new people (in the senate) to take over."

Phillips has been a member of the senate for three years and was elected pro tempore after the senate election last fall.

The new pro tempore will be elected at Thursday's senate meeting. August Field (Arts and Sciences) and Tony Wendrzyk (Engineering) have been nominated for the position. Together, Field and Wendrzyk wrote eight of the nine bills currently before the senate.

One of the bills calls for the publication of the names of administrators who did not reply to an invitation to appear before the senate. The names would be published in a $222 half-page advertisement in The Central Florida Future.

According to Field, the senate sent President Trevor Colbourn and top administrators invitations to attend a meeting of the senate. Only Colbourn replied.

"I want to set precedent," Field said. "I feel the senate has not gotten the respect and attention from the administration that it should."

"When we speak, we expect administrators to listen to us."

Field said the bill's purpose was not to embarrass members of the administration, but to inform the student body of who had not replied to the senate's invitation.

The senate is expected to vote on the bill this week.

ROTC elevated to host

by Staff Report
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

On January 22 at 1:30 p.m. the UCF Army Reserve Training Corps unit will be elevated to host status during following a luncheon in the president's dining room.

UCF is one of two universities in the First ROTC Region to be given host status in 1986. The First ROTC Region, made up of 16 states in the eastern United States as well as Panama, the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico, is one of four in the country. The First ROTC Region, headquartered at Fort Bragg, has the largest number of cadets and the largest in the number of colleges and universities with Army ROTC programs.

Brig. Gen. Peter W. Lash, commander of the First ROTC Region, will present the orders designating UCF as a host institution to Drew Moores, cadet battalion commander.

UCF's budget for the ROTC program will increase when UCF becomes a host institution. The number of Army personnel assigned to the university will go from six — four officers and two non-commissioned officers — to nine — six officers and three non-commissioned officers. The academic rankings of the top ROTC instructors will carry the

Efficient appliances provide new comfort and savings

FLORIDA SOLAR ENERGY CENTER

Here's a simple little quiz every Florida resident ought to take. See how well you do on these two questions.

Question 1: Which of the following is a good idea?

A. Pound the bottoms of your pots and pans with a hammer.

B. Decide what you want for dessert before opening the refrigerator.

C. Leave food in cookware on your electric range burner after the burner has been turned off.

D. Consider paying higher prices when it's time to buy major appliances.

E. All of these.

Question 2: Which of the following is a bad idea?

A. Buy smaller wattage light bulbs to cut down on energy use.

B. Grate your cheese by hand instead of using your food processor.

C. Buy older, used appliances instead of the more expensive new ones.

D. If your current refrigerator is too small, buy a second one and run both.

E. All of these.

Okay, Vanna White, the answers please.

If you answered "E" to both questions, you win the prize. And in this case, the prize is a more comfortable home at lower energy costs. All of the above "answers" highlight some of the suggestions and myths surrounding efficient home appliances.

According to Charlie Cromer of the Florida Solar Energy Center, the use of efficient appliances can make a substantial difference in your lifestyle.

"The bottom line of appliance efficiency," he said, "is that a person's basic quality of life can be affected." The tremendous economic savings of efficient appliances translates to an increase in the more than double that if you consider your air conditioner to be an appliance. Using energy-efficient appliances can cut your annual bill by 30 to 50 percent.

In Florida, where air conditioning is the single biggest energy user during the year, buying the right type of air conditioner can save a substantial amount of money.

"When it's time to replace your air conditioner," Cromer advised, "call a number of companies in your area and ask for information on their units with the highest SEER — Seasonal Energy Efficiency Rating — the standard rating system for air conditioners. The higher the SEER, the more efficient the unit. While a typical air conditioning unit has an SEER of 8, you'll find some on the market with ratings of 13 or 14. You'll pay a higher price for initial installation of the system, but with our high use of air conditioning during the year, the energy savings will make up the difference in just a few years.

Cromer adds that if you have gas or oil heat, just look for a high efficiency air conditioner when it's time for a new one. But if you have electric heat, consider an air conditioning heat pump, especially if you live in Central or North Florida. These units work by moving heat from the indoors to the outdoors during the summer, and bring available heat inside during the winter.

Oh, about those questions above — some may seem like trick questions, but consider the following energy tips:

Over years of use, cooking utensils tend to get uneven on the bottom. By flattening out the surface so they make better contact with the burner, the stove operates more efficiently.

Standing in front of an open refrigerator has become the national pastime in many homes. Letting that cold air rush out wastes a great deal of energy, so try to minimize the amount of time the door is left open.

Take advantage of the fact that electric burners stay hot for a while after they are turned off, and complete your cooking time by letting pans stay on the burner after turning it off.

When buying an appliance, don't just look at the price tag. Think about the costs of operating that appliance for the next 10 years or so as well as the initial cost. It has been estimated that operating a refrigerator for 20 years costs three times as much as the purchase price itself.

Because smaller wattage bulbs put out less light and are less efficient than larger ones, you need more of them to obtain the same brightness. Two 60-watt bulbs are needed to get the brightness of one 100-watt bulb, so if you can't manage with less light from one bulb, you'll pay 15 to 20 percent more for the two smaller bulbs to operate. When you buy bulbs, consider that their operating cost is up to 10 times their purchasing cost.

Sure, food processors (and toasters, coffee makers, blenders and many other popular appliances) use power, but they use it for such a short time that they

New tax laws take effect many changes in 1987

Editors's Note: The following taxpayer suggestions are the work of the Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Now that the new year is here, it is time to think about filing your income tax. Even if you don't prepare your own taxes, you need to know what form you can use so you can compile the right information.

There are three forms taxpayers can use to file their federal income tax return. The longest form is 1040.

On it, you can claim all your income and take all your deductions. With all of the required tax forms, it can be many pages long.

Form 1040A is a simpler version of the 1040 and is used by taxpayers who meet a certain criteria. The third form and the easiest to file is the 1040EZ.

Before you can decide which form to file, look at your financial records for 1986. The amount of income you earn and where it comes from will determine the form you can file.

1040: The 1040 form can be used to report any type of income including wages, interest, dividends and such. This form is actually a combination of forms — called schedules — which different taxpayers file depending on how they earn their income and incur their deductions.

You should also use this form if you have income from several of the following: salary, capital gains, taxable Social Security benefits, interest, rental property, your own business and other income.

You should also use the 1040 if you take a lot of deductions. If you have mortgage interest payments, itemized deductions, moving expenses, Keogh or IRA contribution deductions and other deductions, you may need to file this form.

1040A: This form is less detailed than the 1040 and its schedules. Taxpayers can use this form if they meet certain criteria.

First, your taxable income must be less than $50,000 and consist solely of wages subject to withholding, ordinary dividends, interest income or taxable unemployment compensation.

Second, your itemized deductions cannot exceed the zero bracket amount of $3,670 if you are married and filing jointly or $2,480 if you are a single individual or a head of a household, or if itemized deductions are $1,835 as a married person filing a separate return.

If your itemized deductions are more than your zero bracket amount or you have to itemize your deductions, then you have to file form 1040.

1040EZ: This is by far the easiest form for taxpayers to file. However, there are restrictions which make many taxpayers ineligible to use it.

The first restriction is that you have to be single. On top of that, your taxable income has to be less than $50,000. Also, the only income besides wages (and tips) allowed is from interest and it cannot exceed $400.

The final restrictions are: You cannot itemize deductions or claim any credits when filing your return.

Meeting just one or two of these requirements is not enough. To be able to use this form you must meet all the requirements. If you don't, then you should consider using form 1040A.

Under the new tax reform act, all taxpayers will be required to file a new W-4 form with their employer to determine the amount of tax dollars to be withheld from their pay.

Technically, taxpayers have until Oct. 1, 1987 to file the new form. But for many, it will be wise to file the new form as early as possible so that the proper amount of tax dollars are withheld from their pay, according to the Florida Institute of CPA's.

If a taxpayer is found by the IRS to have paid too little in taxes through withholdings, he or she could be subject to penalties.

The new form and instructions run four pages, including a worksheet with 21 items to compute withholdings, making it twice as long. Many taxpayers will be able to provide the necessary information by filling in the first five lines.

Single individuals who do not itemize deductions and who do not earn income outside wages, and one-income couples who also do not itemize or get outside income will be able to skip the remaining 16 lines on the form.

Taxpayers who have incomes of $950 or more from a working spouse, hold more than one job or earn nowage income will be required to continue and complete the entire form. Taxpayers with itemized deductions, tax credits, adjustments to income or deductions for age or blindness should complete the entire form for extra withholding allowances, although it is not required.

After completing the new form, many taxpayers will find they will be able to claim the same number of withholding allowances they did under the old law. At the same time, many people will also find that they will have less tax withheld because of the changes in the tax law.

Some taxpayers will end up reducing the number of withholding allowances they claim because several of the tax benefits that are allowed for withholding allowances, such as IRA contributions and sales taxes, will be restricted or eliminated under the new tax law.

OH, THOSE LINES

Does this look familiar to you? If so, you were probably waiting to get in the book store last week along with these faithful students.

don't significantly affect your total bill. You could run your 750-watt food processor a full minute every day of the month (that's a lot of grated cheese) and still add just a few cents to your power bill.

Older, used appliances may cost less, but they were probably made before appliances became energy efficient. You'll pay much more to own them in the long run.

It usually costs significantly more to operate two refrigerators — especially if one is an older model — than one larger one. If you need a new refrigerator (and more space for food), consider buying a larger model rather than a second smaller one to go with your current model.

For a number of months, appliance manufacturers, environmentalists and others have been putting together national minimum appliance energy standards. Congress approved a National Appliance Energy Conservation Act last summer and send it on to the President for his approval. This action highlights the interest that people have in saving money and energy by using the most efficient appliances.

There is a fairly new product on the market which might be called "The Lazy Homeowner's Energy-Saving Friend."

The product is the "smart thermostat" — a computer-operated energy manager that controls your air conditioning and heating to keep your home comfortable and your power bills low.

Recent technological advances have made these thermostats easy to use, accurate and effective in regulating the temperature in your home year-around. The catch is that you really do not need one at all if you are willing to take the time to adjust your air conditioner and heater settings yourself.

In today's busy world, however, few people can take the time to continually reset their thermostats to the needed temperature throughout the day. Thus a new industry has been created to do the manual labor for you.

"Using one of the new smart thermostats," said Mukesh Khattar of the Florida Solar Energy Center, "is like putting a timer on your water heater to save energy and money. If you're willing to turn off your water heater by flipping the breaker when you don't need hot water, you can regulate it yourself. If you don't want to take the time — or if you keep forgetting to do it — then a timer will remember to do the job for you. That's how a smart thermostat functions. It doesn't do a very hard job. It just does it repeatedly and easily."

Khattar explained that though there are a number of types of thermostats on the market which regulate the home's energy systems in different forms, the most popular among Florida homeowners is the setback thermostat, so-called because you can program it to regulate your air conditioner according to your lifestyle.

"You can set the thermostat so that it raises the temperature 5, 10 or even 15 degrees when you're out of the house, sleeping or at some other time when you don't need maximum cooling," Khattar said. "For example, you can set your thermostat in the summertime to 78 degrees from 5 p.m., an hour before you get home from work, until 10 p.m. when you go to sleep. The thermostat can then adjust to 80 degrees while you're sleeping, bring the temperature down to 78 again when you wake up at 6:30, then raise it to as high as 88 during the day while everyone is gone."

Now you see why it's called a "smart" thermostat. You program information into its memory that lets it regulate the temperature in your home 24 hours a day. Most of these thermostats have several setback periods each day to allow you to adjust them closely to your lifestyle. Some even have five or seven-day settings so you can change the time periods for weekends when you are home. You can thus fine-tune your air conditioning needs to keep your home comfortable and efficient.

"Every degree you can raise the setting above 78 will save you approximately eight percent on your air conditioning bills," Khattar noted. "And unlike you, the thermostat won't forget to make the change. It won't go on vacation. It won't oversleep. And it won't make a mistake."

Though Khattar had done dome studies on the thermostats in his work on air conditioning systems research, his biggest involvement with setback thermostats comes from his friends, who ask his help in setting them.

"People seem to hate programming their thermostats," he explained. "It's really not difficult at all, but many people find it tough psychologically. The same goes for their VCRs and other equipment. Many people don't even use the timers on equipment because they're afraid they'll use them wrong."

If you're building a new house or if your current thermostat needs to be replaced, Khattar suggests that a setback model will save you money. There are three important things to keep in mind when buying one, especially since there are a number of models available today.

First, try to find one with a manual override switch on it, so that you can easily make changes without reprogramming the unit. You might have the thermostat set to raise the temperature at 10 p.m., for example, and you get company one night that keeps you up late. Instead of making changes in the setting, an override switch will allow you to bypass the setback scheduled for that time.

designation full professor and assistant professor of military science.

Because of the host status designation, UCF will now be able to enroll four-year ROTC scholarship recipients. These scholarships pay the student's tuition, fees, and expenses except room and board, plus $100 a month.

There are 10 other Florida colleges and universities with full-fledged Army ROTC programs: Florida Institute of Technology in Melbourne; Embry Riddle Aero Nautical University in Daytona Beach; Florida A & M University in Tallahassee; Florida Southern College in Lakeland; FSU in Tallahassee; Stetson University in Deland; the University of Florida in Gainesville; the University of Miami in Coral Gables; the University of South Florida in Tampa; and the University of Tampa.

The UCF ROTC program, established in 1978, commissioned its first group of officers in 1981. Five were commissioned, compared to 17 in 1986. There are 151 students enrolled in the ROTC program at UCF.

The UCF ROTC unit will be called the Fighting Knights Battalion. LTC James Tarleton, the commander of the UCF ROTC unit, predicts a bright future for the Fighting Knights Battalion with the new status.

No longer a part of Stetson University's ROTC program, UCF will have more independence in developing its program. In the past all cadet training and logistic support had to be coordinated through Stetson.

If you are really serious about saving energy, a setback thermostat can be a great aid. Try adjusting your current thermostat manually at different times of the day to see if you can do the job yourself. You'll then appreciate the assistance that a programmable thermostat will give you in keeping your home comfortable and energy-efficient.

Second, don't buy more of a unit than you need. If someone is home all day long and you usually don't change the setting at night, consider just a one- or two-cycle unit to meet your needs.

Third, ask about the effect of power failures on the settings. You don't want to reprogram the entire unit every time the power goes out.

Khattar offers one final suggestion. "Don't put all your faith into the reading on the thermometer, especially if it is digital. Often these readings are inaccurate by a couple of degrees or more. Go by how you feel more than by what the readout says.

Ramblings from the desk of a broken editor

When I set out to write this editorial, I planned to contemplate God and nature or some other deep and intellectual sounding topic.

That, of course, was before our computer system broke down. At this writing, it's still dead.

As an editor (or any kind of boss) what do you do when the equipment has passed on and the staff has that dangerous "I'm going to explode" look in their eyes?

Tonight, like many other nights, I was forced to consider this problem. The answer was simple. Pizza and beer...lots of beer.

Oh yeah, at the time of this writing (or typing, rather) I have already had a few of the solutions. Beer, as I pointed out, is the solution.

Tonight was a real problem. Even after we brought back the beer and pizza the staff still looked dangerous.

That's when I decided they needed a lesson in "shotgunning" a beer. For those who don't know about such things, shotgunning involves putting a hole in the bottom of your can and then opening and drinking the beer. The result is that you get a stomach full of beer at Warp 12.

This finally calmed the staff down. Of course, no one else was willing to try this new skill I had passed on. No wonder, my typing skills seemed to have deteriorated a bit. Thank goodness for copy editors.

I keep thinking to myself that I'll probably regret this editorial in the morning. Isn't that when the regrets usually come to haunt you?

I mean everybody that is anybody reads this editorial. Hi President Colbourn.

Yes, the staff seems really relaxed now. Actually, most of them have gone home, but the ones that are still here are cheering me on in this "ramblin" endeavor.

For the record, Mr. Policemen, we went back to my house to drink the beer. We were all of age and we had a sober person drive us back to work. What harm could this cause, I figured.

Hmmmm. I guess I shouldn't have worried about the staff. They're real friendly now, even to the computer.

In fact, someone suggested that we give it a beer and for a split second it seemed like a good idea. We didn't. We have enough regrets to haunt us already.

Thankfully, I'm running out of room here. The computer still isn't running. I can't help but wonder if it isn't trying to save me. (Copy editor's note: Nothing can save you, Don. Don't even bother trying.)

Anyway, it's time to wrap this one up. Hopefully the computers will eventually start running and this issue will go to print. Someday.

So stay tuned and maybe Thursday we'll discuss God and nature. Then again, if our computers break down again, maybe we won't.

He's not so progressive after all

Since the age of 18 I've thought of myself as a pretty progressive, open-minded, non-sexist kind of guy. If a female wants to throw herself into a traditionally male-dominated job, by all means, let her do it.

But some girl named Carla just went and blew my whole positive self-conception. She made me realize that deep down, there's still a little chauvinist at the controls of my social attitudes.

I was playing some tackle football with some friends Sunday afternoon. The group included a few girls, which was no problem. We always have some girls in the game and frankly, I like the spunk they add.

But Sunday, this girl Carla made a fool out of me.

Carla is a fairly petite person so I figured tackling her would not be too difficult. In fact I was afraid to tackle her. So I decided the proper thing to do would be just to get in her way. Easy enough. When she runs at me with the ball, I thought, I'll just sort of stand in her path and not let her by.

Well, eventually Carla got the ball. She ran in my direction. I stood in her path. She ran over me.

Fortunately, my peanut butter-eating, beer-drinking buddy, Herman L. Cockroach, popped up

TIM BALL

The other side of nowhere with a flawless rationalization to pacify my confused brain.

"Don't sweat it," he said. "Even the pros miss a tackle now and then. Don't let it bother you. Now get back in there and fight, kid."

Carla came my direction a few plays later. I got ready to make the tackle.

While I was getting ready. She plowed through me and made curdled okra out of my right shoulder. "Don't worry," sneered Herman. "Get her next time and you've redeemed yourself."

I don't have to tell you what happened "next time."

After all this embarrassment, I came to the following conclusion:

Women should not be allowed to play football with men if they're going to make fools out of them.

Next thing you know, they'll start trying to outdrink us.

Letters

■ NO CONTROVERSY

Dear Editor:

In your Dec. 4, 1986 edition of the paper you printed a letter written by a Mr. Terry Schrader. His letter addresses some concern over his belief that a controversy exists at the Student Government branch in Daytona Beach. First of all, I feel this is not the case at Daytona. Secondly, I would like to inform those who read your publication that Mr. Schrader applied for the position that I currently hold. After he found out that the job could not be his, for reasons that I do not care to know, he has staged an apparent attack at the individuals he feels are responsible for his unsuccessful bid to be the Area Campus Coordinator. On the other hand, I was chosen for the job and given the opportunity to serve the students. I feel I have done a good job so far and plan to continue on the same track this Spring '87 semester.

Moreover, I find it quite disturbing to discover that Mr. Schrader states, "the Senate Appointments and Elections Committee reviewed Hatz and found him unfavorable," well I beg your pardon Mr. Schrader, they did in fact find me to be favorable and I must add — I regret that you did not know this prior to your letter printed Dec. 4, 1986 — which happens to be at least one month after my appointment. The Student Senate found me to be a favorable candidate for the position after they interviewed me and reviewed the petition from a variety of UCF Daytona students who supported me in my quest for the job. Many of these students are also qualified for the job I currently hold — we have some very talented students at the Daytona Campus. I would encourage each and every one of them to get involved with Student Government. I regret that Mr. Schrader feels the way he does and certainly wish him luck if he should choose to reapply for the position in the future. I am planning to graduate May 1, 1987 and plan to leave the position to accept full-time employment and I'm sure applications will be available for those who feel they are qualified to do the job. Until then, I will continue to do the job to the best of my ability.

In closing, I feel it necessary to address another segment of Mr. Schrader's letter, that which accuses Student Body President Ira Smith of being something he is not. Ira Smith, in reality, is not the omnipotent power Mr. Schrader claims he is. Ira is a fair person and a truly concerned individual who only endeavors to do the job he was elected to do. Ira does not play games with people and he is a very straightforward person in my opinion. I am proud of our Student Government at UCF and feel that we have an excellent university to represent. I will not allow one person to destroy that which I know to be true. No serious controversy exists at the Daytona Campus SGA and I want the university community at-large to know this. Let's all have a great semester!

Respectfully
Andrew S. Hatz
Daytona Area Campus SGA
Coordinator

PRESENTED BY THE
UCF STUDENT HEALTH
& WELLNESS CENTER

WRITTEN BY DARIN BROWN

Let's say you get sick. All the classic symptoms: red, watery eyes, sore throat, coughing, aching, chills, and downright general discomfort. This year, however, you get fed up with his being sick; you went to see one of the doctors at the Health Center.

The doc says that the best way to recover is to get plenty of rest, eat and drink sensibly, and use only mild medication, much of which is available through the Health Center pharmacy. If your condition should worsen, including a persistent cough (especially rusty tinted mucus), high fever, chest pains, earache, or large lymph nodes on either side of the neck, you would do best to contact a physician. It's free at the Student Health Center. Finally, the doctor says that unless your friends want to end up feeling miserable as well they'd better keep away from that virus. Remember that the virus is spread by both direct and indirect contact, and hand-washing is the most effective way to keep a cold from spreading. Coughing, sneezing, kissing, and handshaking are common means of direct transmission. While less obvious, indirect transmission from towels, telephones, toothpaste tubes, and drinking glasses can be just as serious for spreading the virus.

MR. VIRUS

The take-home message here is that you take care of yourself you'll probably never get sick in the first place. The Student Health Center is giving Taiwan flu vaccinations right now (free for students, $5 for faculty and staff), and the Wellness Center next door provides all you need for a healthier, happier lifestyle. You're a much better you without the flu!

Lady Knights are struggling with their 2-8 record. Donna Calloway/CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Lady Knights host 49ers

by Chad Salinas
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR

The Lady Knights basketball team will put its 2-8 record on the line tonight when they host the University of North Carolina-Charlotte.

The Lady 49ers are coached by Cindy Connelley, who has a 28-25 record at UNC-Charlotte in two years. Last season, Connelley led her team to a 15-13 mark, including a 3-3 mark in the Sun Belt Conference, which was good enough for third place.

The Lady 49ers lost two letterman, one being a starter. They are returning, though, 11 players with experience which includes four starters.

This means that they will be more experienced than the Lady Knights, who returned three players, and one starter.

Leading the Lady Knights will be DeAnn Craft, who is averaging over 21 points a game. Craft also contributes about five assists per outing.

Supporting Craft is Fayette Robinson, and her 19.6 ppg average. Robinson is also pulling down almost 10 rebounds a game.

Looking past Friday and into the future, the Lady Knights are approaching mid season. UCF has scheduled eight more conference games throughout the year. This Friday marks their second New South Women's Athletic Conference game.

Next week the Ladies are looking at games with Tulane, New Orleans and Florida A & M. The Knights will be in Louisiana for the Tulane and New Orleans games, while the Florida A and M game is a home match.

Ladies surrender to G. South.

by Chad Salinas
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR

The Lady Knights (2-8, 0-1) basketball team took on a tough host Georgia Southern squad in the conference opener for both teams on Friday night, and came up on the short end of a 91-74 score.

Georgia Southern raised their record to 7-4 with the victory. The win over UCF was their first in conference. To prove their strength, GSC went on to defeat Stetson on Saturday.

The first-half was characterized by solid shooting from the field for both teams. GSC shot 59.5 percent from the field in the first half, which was half a percentage point lower than UCF's 60 percent effort. Despite the even shooting, GSC went into the locker room with a nine-point lead, 52-43.

The Lady Knights came out cold after the break. UCF shot 35.5 percent from the field, going 11-for-31. The ladies finished the game at 48.4 clip.

The Lady Eagles dropped to 45.9 percent average, which put them at 53.2 percent for the game. Leading GSC were Phyllette Blake and Regina Days, who pitched in 22 points apiece.

Pacing the Lady Knights were DeAnn Craft and Fayette Robinson. Both Craft and Robinson contributed 16 points, and Robinson added 10 rebounds.

The two biggest problems for UCF were their defense and rebounding. Besides allowing more than 90 points for the sixth time in 10 games, the Lady Knights were outrebounded by 10 boards.

On a brighter side, Julie Cardinale hit the first three-point goal in the history of the New South Women's Athletic Conference play.

This game was similar to last year's second contest between the two teams. Last season's game, played in Statesboro, ended with GSC on top, 94-73. If history repeats itself, UCF should take the home date by approximately five points.

The Lady Knights will be hoping for their first conference win this Friday night against Georgia State. Donna Calloway/CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Flying High

Pat Crocklin pulled down nine rebounds in the game against Central Connecticut. He also tossed in 11 points for the Knights in their 86-73 win.

KATHY JOHNSON

Center court

Personally, I'm ready for baseball.

Football is old. It's hard enough when your favorite team loses in the playoffs, but heck, it's even worse when they never even got close enough to contemplate the term "postseason play".

Maybe it's just me or quite possibly, maybe it is the snoozer teams that have been part of my television for the past month. Call me a sore loser but if I can't cheer on my favorite team, who I won't mention due to sheer shock everytime I try to imagine football without them, I find it difficult to become emotionally or actively involved in the game.

Having "your" team knocked out of the playoffs or maybe not even a part of them, can send every true football fan into a maze of disorient. When this kind of disaster happens, have you ever noticed how everyone kind of selects a new favorite team to root for? Even if you have never before seen this chosen team play, they suddenly develop into your answer for loyalty and favorable support.

Well, I too did this, and Sunday all my hopes and dreams went down the tubes. I stuck my neck out, I poured my feelings into this selected team only to see them diminish before my very eyes. For one whole week the Browns were my team.

How depressing. Now all I can do is sit in front of the tube January 25 and wait. Wait for what? Why, baseball season of course!

In less than one month UCF baseball will kick off their season against West Florida (Feb. 6). So we don't even have to wait for the pros to start. Talk about brightening my day. Besides, an inside source has informed me that the Knights are looking stronger and better than ever. With a record of 46-13 last year, the Knights give us all something and someone to cheer for.

Joe Weinstein/CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Knight of the Day

John Friday

Friday is a returning senior center for the men's basketball team. In each of the three games last week, he had seven blocked shots. On the season Friday has accumulated 36 rejections.

CHAD SALINAS

From the sideline

After 10 games of close observation of the Lady Knights basketball team, one thing is very obvious.

The Lady Knights do not know how to play defense.

First, let's look at last year's squad. UCF coach Nancy Little, in her first season, inherited a team that was successful the year before (1984-85), and was returning six players from a twenty-win season.

This squad was a very powerful team on offense. The 1985-86 Lady Knights averaged 82.4 points a game. However, they gave up 82.5 ppg.

This season's team is much like that squad. The present Lady Knights are averaging 82.2 points a game. However, opponents are feasting on UCF's "blue bayou" defense for an astounding 90.4 points per game average.

For those of you unfamiliar with this type of defense, its when a teammate goes up to you and says, "Man, your guy just blew by you!!"

What is wrong with the Lady Knights defense?

First of all, let's look at their size. The tallest player is 6-foot Fayette Robinson. Most of the teams that UCF has played this year have had two starters over six-feet tall. This means an advantage at at least two positions for the opponents.

Another problem is depth. Coach Little has five reserves for each game, but she doesn't use them effectively.

Therefore, the starting five get tired quickly, and sometimes get into foul trouble, and can't be as aggressive on defense as they normally would.

With a tough schedule remaining, including nine conference games, Little has to tighten the Lady Knights defense if they want to make a run for the New South Women's Athletic Conference championship.

After all, what's the point of scoring 80 points a game when you allow 90?

Donna Calloway/Central Florida Future

Stealin' the show

The Knights wrapped up a successful week in basketball with two wins against Division I teams. Central Connecticut and Delaware State both fell prey.
